Intermountain Concrete Specialties (ICS) was founded in 1950 by Allen Terry in Salt Lake City, UT. For 67 years they have been committed to providing the best customer service possible. And as a result, they have expanded to five locations across Utah, with a sixth in Idaho Falls, Idaho.

To ensure that customers get the best possible products for their jobs, ICS works hard to train all of its employees and the customers. A big part of that training on Allen Equipment has come from Brad Ketcherside (AEC Territory Sales Rep.). He has spent a lot of time of the last couple of years helping train the ICS team and help contractors in the field.

“Support from Allen Engineering, not only in the field, but also at the service level have been key in Intermountain Concrete Specialties growth with AEC,” Brad added.

Intermountain’s commitment to excellent customer service and employee/ contractor training is exactly what Allen looks for in a high quality dealer. We are proud to support Intermountain Concrete Specialties in their mission of solving contractor’s major quality and productivity issues by providing equipment and training whenever and wherever it is needed.
